

ARCHITECTURAL STYLES OF HISTORIC PROPERTIES IN EAU CLAIRE, WISCONSIN

Eau Claire has a rich heritage and past. An important bridge to this heritage still remains in the buildings that provide a sense of place unique to no other community. Whether these buildings are residential, commercial, industrial or religious in nature, all reflect the City's evolution from a lumber center to a regional manufacturing and service center. Looking at these buildings also gives us a glimpse of the diverse nature of the people that took part in the growth of the community.

This website has been prepared for the public by the Eau Claire Landmarks Commission to inform and educate the public of the many architectural styles of buildings within the City. Hopefully, it will provide you with a greater appreciation of these buildings and of those who were involved in their construction.

This website identifies the most common types of architectural styles that were built in the City from the 1850s through the early 1900s. In addition, some of the most characteristic features of these styles are illustrated. Also included is a city map that identifies the location of several buildings that are good examples of each architectural style featured.
